

Dr. Jia-Cheng Lee graduated from National Tsing Hua University in Taiwan and currently works as a medical physicist at Taipei Veterans General Hospital. He is mainly responsible for clinical services such as teletherapy, brachytherapy, heavy ion therapy, and boron neutron capture therapy. Approximately 10 years of working experience. He is also a director of Chinese Society of Medical Physics (CSMP), Secretary General of Taiwan Society of Neutron Capture Therapy (TSNCT), and Deputy Secretary-General of Taiwan Society for Therapeutic Radiology and Oncology (TASTRO). It attaches great importance to the education of medical physicists and actively promotes the education and training of medical physicists in Taiwan.